With The Secret History and The Sacred History, Black is doing for spirituality what The God Delusion and God is Not Great have done for materialism. Let's hope he opens the floodgates' Sevak Edward Gulbekian, New Review. (New Review) 'The Sacred History is unlike any book I have ever read about spirituality. It challenged my beliefs from the very beginning and has renewed my faith in the fundamentally spiritual nature of reality' Philip Carr-Gomm, Chief of the Order of Bards, Ovates and Druids.

When I got this book, I thought this was going to review major events in world history and try to show how angels etc. influenced them. No. This book is attempting to argue that stories taken from various world traditions and sacred texts are actually a real history describing the evolution of man into material form directly from spirit; to be clear, this is seeming to by-pass scientific ...
